

Dear Faculty Member,

We are excited to announce that the 2023-2024 iOme Challenge competition is now open for registrations. The Challenge Question and submission guidelines are available at: iOmeChallenge.org.

What is The Challenge?

The goal of the iOme (I OWE ME) Challenge is to raise awareness about financial security in retirement, especially for younger generations. Student teams from across the country respond to the annual iOme Challenge Question in essay form, no longer than 5,000-words. Students from all academic disciplines are encouraged to participate.

THE PRIZE:

The winning team shares a financial prize of $5,000 and is invited to present their essay at a Washington, DC symposium and meet with policymakers on Capitol Hill. (In the event of Covid-19 restrictions, the event will be held virtually) The Faculty Advisor wins a $1,500 prize and is also invited to D.C.

The Challenge Question:

The 118th Congress has appointed you as a member of the 2024 Independent Commission on Retirement Security. The retirement system needs to be re-evaluated and a comprehensive approach needs to be developed to modernize efforts in support of more efficient and effective programs that help Americans plan and save for a more secure retirement.

Your job as a Gen Z'er about to enter the workforce is to bring a new perspective to the Independent Commission on Retirement Security and to develop a comprehensive proposal to improve one or all of the three pillars of the nation's retirement system for all generations in order to improve their chances of living a financially secure retirement. Your proposal should include specific policies that will target the needs and challenges of specific population segments you believe the commission should prioritize.

The deadline for submissions is May 14, 2023. The winner will be announced later in May, and the winning team will be invited to present their essay at a forum in Washington, DC on June 20, 2024.

Some professors have found it works well to incorporate the iOme Challenge into their course work for second semester (dividing a class into teams) or offer it as an extra credit project. In past years, campus clubs have formed a team to participate. We hope you will consider developing a team or encouraging your students to do so. You will be providing students with an opportunity to explore these issues and share their findings with a national audience. (Small teams and teams of one are accepted.)

What Previous Student Winners Say:

“It’s been one of the most enriching and amazing experiences I’ve ever had and I can safely say that for our entire team! It’s been our great honor to present our paper and hear from so many experts speaking at the forum and offering us a lot of useful suggestions for future work.”

Please visit iOmeChallenge.org, or contact us at info@iomechallenge.org.

We also ask and encourage you to share this email with other professors and students who might be interested.

With many thanks from the iOme Challenge!
